I Have. . . Who Has. . .

Christmas Puns

(28 Playing Cards)

Playing Directions:

- Print playing cards on card stock and cut apart.
- Give each student a card. To accommodate for classes of less than or more than 28 students, ask some students to take two cards or allow students to play the game as partners.
- Choose any student to act as the first player and start the game by reading the Who-has question on his/her card aloud to the class. (Use the Who-has/I-have list on the next page to locate the starting point and follow the correct game sequence.)
- The student holding the card with the answer to the previous question printed in the top portion says “I have (answer),” and then reads the question at the bottom of his/her card—“Who has (question).”
- Continue with the “I have. . . Who has. . .” question and answer sequence until the student who started the game can answer “I have (answer)” from the top of his/her card.
- Play the game several times with the goal of beating the previous time it took to complete the 28 card round.
